

Biosafety and Biocontainment Training for BSL-3 Laboratory Workers Biosecurity Research Institute, Manhattan, Kansas

March 8 – March 12, 2010

The National Biosafety and Biocontainment Training Program and Kansas State University are offering a 4.5 day series of courses in Biosafety and Biocontainment for BSL-3 Laboratory Workers. These courses are designed for biosafety professionals, researchers and laboratorians to enhance individual knowledge and meet the scientific, regulatory, biocontainment, biosafety, and engineering challenges associated with the working in a biocontainment facility. Daily topics will include:

- Introduction to microbiology and biosafety
- Principles of biosafety and biocontainment
- The biological risk assessment process
- Laboratory sterilization and disinfection
- Emergency planning and response
- Laboratory regulations, standards and guidelines
- Large animal facility design and operations
- Hands on sessions using laboratory equipment

A detailed schedule will be available at www.nbbtp.org. NBBTP is authorized by IACET to offer 3.6 CEUs. Participants will be required to score a minimum of 70% on each post-course knowledge assessment in order to receive CEUs.
